

Brave

I used to wake up in the morning
Facing every day with a smile
I was the kinda guy you'd ask
For directions if you were lost
But now I don't know if I'm coming or going
Like a vampire, I'm afraid of the sun
When it's glowing

I used to feel like I had a reason
For living every moment like it was my last
But then I had my fill of the electric thrill
When I met you
I used to be brave

I used to count the stars at night
I was inspired by distant light
But then I had my fill of the electric thrill
When I met you
I used to be brave

Consider this
It's not just happenstance
That I'm lacking confidence
You played your part
Yeah, you played your part
Now I'm a ruined man, a social also-ran
I just can't move

I used to believe that
I could take on anything
That my shoulders were broad enough
To carry the world
But then I had my fill of the electric thrill
When I met you
I used to be brave
